

Time For a Change?

Over the years, Concerned Women for America (CWA) has earned a reputation for many good things. We stick to principle. We speak out on tough issues. We strive to do quality work. We can disagree — and even agree — without being disagreeable.

We can also stretch a dollar. We're always looking for ways to do things better and more economical. That's why we are weighing whether we can save your much appreciated donations and still have an impact by making Family Voice an online publication.

But is that really the best option? Maybe the expense of printing and mailing is well worth it? Then again, maybe you prefer an online Family Voice?

We need to know what you think. That's why you'll find a survey in the envelope of this edition of Family Voice. Please fill in the survey and mail it back to us. Then, we'll tally the replies and make a decision. (If you're online, simply look for the survey button on our homepage, www.cwfa.org).

Here are some thoughts to consider:

Printing and mailing a print version of Family Voice is very expensive; e-mailing is far cheaper.

Not everyone is online. Will they be left out if we go to an online resource?

An online version can be up-to-the-minute. The print version has a long lead time.

CWA's website is already up-to-the-minute. Are we duplicating effort to produce Family Voice online?

CWA members can't leave an online Family Voice on the literature table at church or hand to their family and friends. But they also can't forward a printed Family Voice to their e-mail contacts.

You might think of other factors. We need your help! Please fill out the survey that came with this edition. Thank you!

Sincerely,
